

Right track for funding formula

Thumbs Up to the state House Education Committee for pushing the ancient medicine ball known as public education funding up the hill a few more yards in an attempt to cure the plague of outrageous property tax increases.

The 18-year-old method that now tries to fund education, albeit in dribs and drabs and altogether inadequate, is clearly failing growing portions of the state such as York County.

The committee action will create a Joint Legislative Commission on Public School Finance made up of lawmakers, teachers, administrators and school board members, to hopefully come up with a funding formula adequate to meet the challenges of today's population shift and student needs.
